Individual Reflection- Week 9

Summary of the week

This week the focus was on the presentation of the demo. In comparison to earlier weeks where the focus were on programming, more emphasize was directed to the administrative and documenting parts of the project. The code was checked for potential bugs and documentation were ensured.

What do I want to learn or understand better?

I feel that I have learned and understood every objective with the course. Perhaps the final thing I want to understand is what is important to display during a demo from the customer's point of view. As I have contributed much to the team reflections throughout the course, I don't believe that the final reflection will increase my knowledge noticeable.

How can I help someone else, or the entire team, to learn something new?

As I stated earlier, I contributed much to the team reflections. Hence, I believe I will be able to guide the team whilst writing the Final Reflection. At least, they will have the earlier team reflections as a baseline for the final reflection. Moreover, I believe the discussion we have had together will facilitate the writing of the final reflection.

What is my contribution to the team's use of Scrum?

I don't believe there will be much usage of Scrum this final week. However, as I have reflected on this topic throughout the course whilst writing the team reflections, I believe this could be viewed as some sort of contribution.

What is my contribution to the team's deliveries?

This week I would say I did not contribute as much as earlier weeks. I had already agreed with the group to not write this week's team reflection as I had very much to write on my bachelor's thesis. I have written a great deal on almost all of the other team reflections, so I believe the team was very okey with this decision.
